

FAITH

a DB Morgan film starring FRANK JAKEMAN & LEONA CLARKE

“Faith resides in the veiled abyss between death and the will to survive! When an absent father is tasked with driving his heavily pregnant daughter to hospital in the dead of night they are thrust into a fight for life when involved in a horrific car accident. With the odds of survival remote at best, Faith asks one of life’s most pertinent questions: Between death and the will to survive, how far can hope lift in the fight for life?”

“Audiences will be crawling out of cinemas, gasping for air.”

Frank Jakeman (Game of Thrones) ★★★★★

“A film so good from start to finish you need to see it again, but most outstanding is the acting. So honest and brave. Simply wonderful!” - juror quote ★★★★★

“Faith is the story I’ve been burning to tell. A claustrophobic disaster movie. A thriller with horrific elements. A flat-out survival horror. Faith is a story of hope, a story of rising beyond one’s fears in the face of unsurmountable adversity. A gut wrenching, rollercoaster of terror. A life affirming experience. A kick up the soul.” db/morgan

Faith tells the story of a family torn apart by vascular dementia and their inability to deal with the raw, and complex, emotions that stem from it. Heart breaking, and real, from DB’s personal experience of witnessing his own father’s dementia. Faith, at core level, is a social commentary on the breakdown of family and the disillusionment we often feel with understanding the point of our existence in the modern world. Specifically, Faith asks us to contemplate our coping methods, our chosen poison, and reminds us that faith in a higher power – be that religion or spirituality - is what’s needed to get by.
